Hitler's Field Station Reported in Danger at Point 230 Miles From Moscow

Tank Fighting Reported in Africa as British Engage Nazis

(By The Associated Press)
Russia's hard-driving armies were reported today to have "almost encircled" Adolf Hitler's field headquarters at Smolensk, 230 miles west of Moscow, bottled up German-held Rzhev and advanced within 120 miles of the Latvian frontier in a 65-mile sweep through the Valdai hills.

Whether Hitler still remained at Smolensk was unknown. Rzhev, 125 miles northwest of Moscow, was a main German defense anchor guarding the "escape corridor" of Hitler's battered armies retreating along the Napoleon road from Mzhaisk to Smolensk.

On the North African front, the astonishing boomerang of Britain's counter-offensive was marked by a great new tank battle raging along the Gulf of Sirte, north of Axis-occupied Agadabia.

Soviet front-line dispatches reported that the Red army thrust to Kholm, cracking the northern anchor of the Nazi "winter line" in the Caidai hills, gravely imperiled the German armies south of Leningrad.

The Russian onslaught, in little more than a month, carried them beyond the headwaters of the Dvina river toward the Latvian frontier, recaptured 2,000 towns, and cost the Germans 17,000 in dead alone, a communique said.

Explodes Hitler Plan
Dispatches to Izvestia, Soviet government newspaper, said that the 65-mile-wide wedge had exploded Hitler's plan to make a last-ditch defense on a line anchored at Kholm. The advancing Red army, it was said, found evidence in town after town that the Germans had stocked up for a winter stand. Warehouses were jammed with food, vast stores of French wine, Norwegian canned goods and barrels of gasoline.

German propaganda hit a new high in commenting on the tremendous Russian surge. A Berlin broadcast flatly denied that "the alleged great Russian offensive" had reached Kholm and declared that anyway, fighting was still going on there.

Offensive Continues
Premier Mussolini's high command said German-Italian motorized columns were continuing their offensive and that "strong enemy units were pushed back further east of Agadabia."

Revolt of the German-occupied Baltic Republics was urged by Soviet Russia as a means of capitalizing immediately on Red army victories which threaten invasion communication lines about both Leningrad and Smolensk.

Pamphlets and radio broadcasts carried the plea to the people of Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia—buffer states invaded and absorbed by the U. S. S. R. in 1940, then invaded and taken over by Germany in 1941.

Soviet soldiers who captured Kholm, 260 miles northwest of Moscow, are based only 120 miles from the Latvian frontier. The re-occupation of Kholm and 2,000 other settlements on the northern front was announced in a special communique last night.

Manpower Is Sought

Philadelphia, Jan. 24 (AP)—A 7 p. m. curfew for all gasoline stations throughout the nation may be asked by the Eastern Seaboard Gasoline Dealers as a war-time defense measure to increase industrial manpower, a spokesman said today.

A. Reed Engle of Philadelphia, a member of the organization's executive committee, said the request may be forwarded to the government during the dealers' meeting here next Tuesday.

Conference Asked To Approve Axis Economic Break

Diplomatic Unit Approves Resolution to End All Relations; 5 Nations Are Ready

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, Jan. 24 (AP)—The Americas' split with the Axis was widened today when the resolution recommending severance of diplomatic relations with Germany, Italy and Japan was supplemented by a similar resolution to break off economic relations.

The first was approved last night by the diplomatic committee of the Pan American Conference and the second today by the economic committee.

Even before they were brought up for sanction of the conference as a whole, five South American nations were reported ready to go ahead at once with the break.

Brazil's foreign minister said his country has virtually broken relations now, needing only formal action by his government, and there were unconfirmed reports here that Peru already had taken definite action.

Summer Welles, United States Undersecretary of State, made no immediate official statement. It was announced, however, that he would summarize the results of the conference in a radio address to the United States at 6:45 p. m., EST.

Needless only the formal approval of the full conference, the resolution represents a major triumph for Argentina, which balked at two previous resolutions requiring a rupture of relations with the Axis.

The compromise recommends, but does not require, a severance of relations.

As the delegation chiefs, one by one, gave their approval to the toned-down resolution, Foreign Minister Alberto Guani of Uruguay said his country would sever Axis relations, probably today, and authorized sources in the conference said Brazil, Bolivia, Paraguay and Peru would follow suit within a few days.

If they do, it would leave only Argentina, Chile and Ecuador on the diplomatic fence. The remainder of the 21 American nations (Continued on Page Eight)

Help Given MacArthur Bodes Ill for Tokyo Invaders

Washington, Jan. 24 (AP)—The mounting resistance of Filipino patriots against the invaders of their commonwealth was demonstrated today by issuance of a harsh Japanese army order imposing death penalty for trivial offenses.

The capital accepted the new Japanese step as a clear indication that the Mikado's forces in the Philippines were feeling a growing sense of insecurity and were redoubling precautions against surprise blows from the 16 million Filipinos.

A navy spokesman's disclosure of the liquidation of an unspecified number of enemy submarines off the Atlantic coast offered cheering relief to the latest reports from the western Pacific, which told of Japanese landings on the outer ring of islands off Australia's northern coastline.

Whether the resistance of the Filipinos to the invaders had resulted in a further spread of guerrilla warfare was unknown here. Only Wednesday, however, a U. S. Army communique recounted how "one of General Douglas MacArthur's guerrilla bands" scored a "brilliant success" in a raid on a Jap airdrome in northern Luzon.

The very fact that MacArthur was able to send word of the stiffened penalties for civil resistance demonstrated that a well organized Filipino intelligence service must be functioning for his benefit—and through—the Japanese lines.

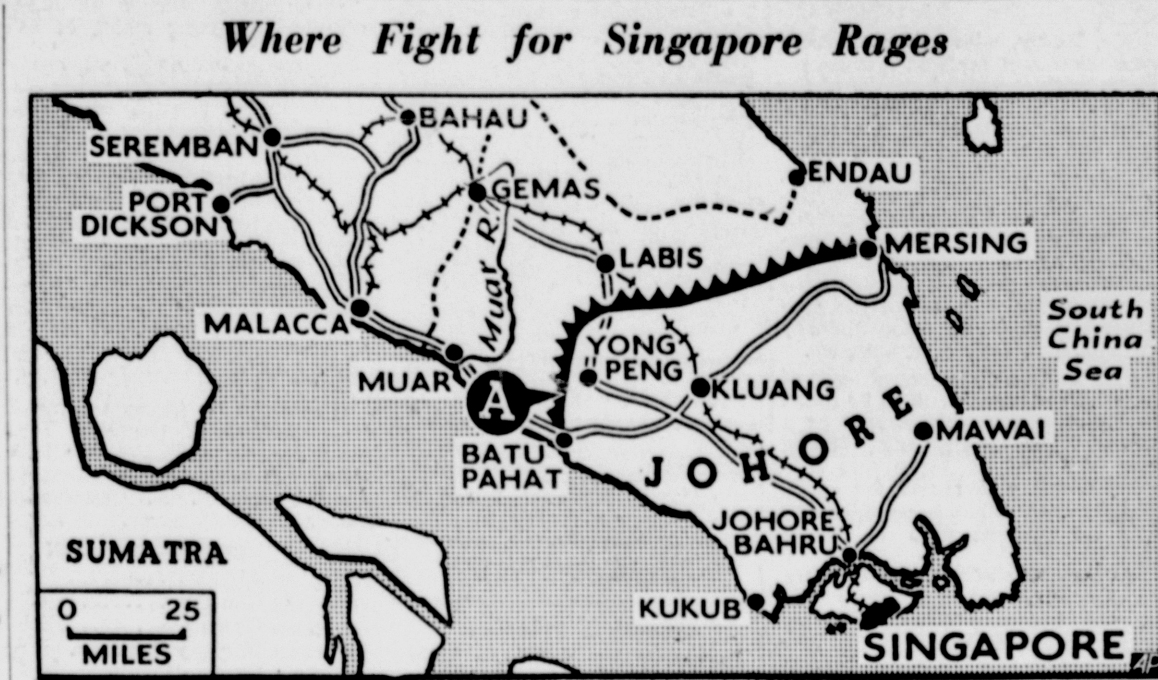

Reports from the Batan Peninsula battlefield told of heavy Japanese assaults, staged with a reckless disregard of casualties, but MacArthur's men held their ground.

The account of the navy's successes against hostile submarines was couched in broad—and ironic—terms by a departmental spokesman.

Without disclosing the number of victories over such craft, he observed that "some of the recent visitors to our territorial waters will never enjoy the return portion of their voyage."

"Furthermore," he added, "the percentage of one-way traffic is increasing while that of two-way traffic is satisfactorily on the decline."

Information concerning the fate of "the enemy submarine ex-cursionists who do not get home," he said, will be withheld until it no longer would be of value to (Continued on Page Two)

Japanese Forces Are Spread Thin In Long Triangle

Some Signs of Japanese Stretch Are Showing, as Shown by Recent Chinese Smash

By FRED VANDERSCHMIDT (Wide World Analyst)
No analysis of the war in the Pacific is complete without stress on the very vastness of the battlefield of ocean, island and archipelago; what it means in thinning out of Japanese bullets, Japanese guns, Japanese planes and Japanese men, and what it offers to the United Nations.

After seven weeks of offensive warfare, conducted at the very maximum of its striking power, Japan has its fighting forces spread in a triangle which, using Tokyo as an apex is more than 4,000 miles at its base and more than 3,000 on its sides.

The German army, which certainly is as least as large as Japan's, occupies by contrast an area considerably smaller, with far less vulnerable lines of communications and supply. Yet the Russians are each day teaching the Germans another bloody lesson in the folly of over-extension.

Already there are a few signs of the consequences of Japan's own spreading out. One was the humiliating defeat which the Chinese were able to deal out to their old enemies behind the front lines at Changsha. Another is the fact that when U. S. and Chinese fighters and bombers raided Hanoi, the capital of Indo-China, there were no fighters in the sky to meet them.

Powerful Air Base
Japan has been making Hanoi into a powerful air base for more than a year. Where, then, is the Japanese aircraft reserve? The answer probably is that it already is engaged, far to the south, east and west.

This reckless spreading out of Japan's should be no invitation to Allied complacency. It is, rather, an immediate challenge to swift reinforcement, staunch defense, constant harassment and adequate planning for the earliest possible counter-offensive.

It can be taken for granted that the footholds which Japan has seized in the Dutch East Indies islands of Borneo and Celebes, and in New Guinea, New Britain, New Ireland and the Solomons are so far lightly held. Left alone, however, Japan ultimately will reinforce them to the point envisaged by the Australians. Then it will be ten times as hard to get them back. Similarly, if Singapore falls, Sumatra and Java are in the deadliest of danger; if all the Indies go, the Australian continent certainly will be invaded; if Burma is invested, China's fight is throttled.

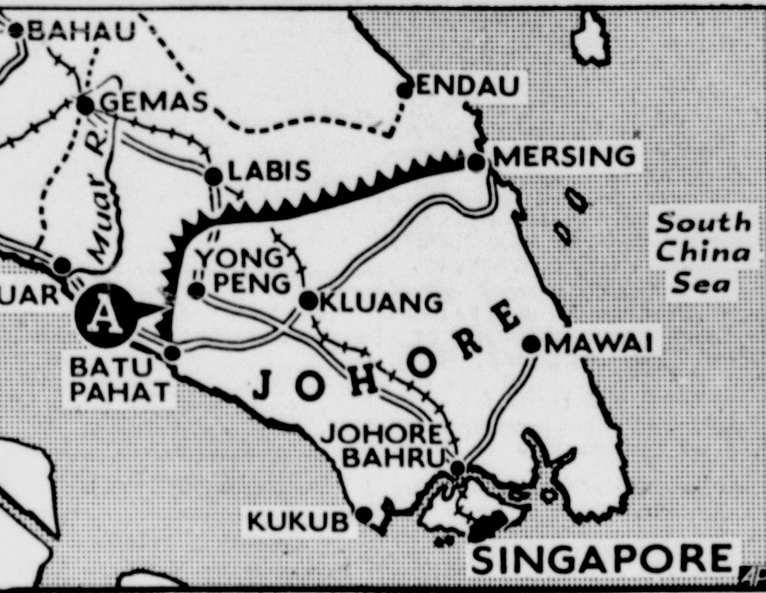

Can Be Fended Off
In the present circumstances, however, Japan can be fended off, if the fighters are given the numbers and the weapons. America's own MacArthur already has made Japan pour 200,000 or more men into the Philippines and pile up frightening casualties. MacArthur's men still hold on and fight back. If they had given up those 200,000 Japanese probably would have taken Singapore by now.

In this one example the need for the utmost defense of the Allies' remaining outposts is abundantly clear.

Malaya and Singapore are outposts too, just as MacArthur's Batan Peninsula is an outpost, and the Malay defenders, if they can be reinforced, can play the same role that MacArthur is playing.

That is desperately stressed in the newest appeal for help which comes from the Australian sub-continent, from Francis M. Forde. (Continued on Page Two)

Supervisors Adopt Civil Service Plan

Sugar Rationing Will Come Soon

Ration Books Are Being Run Off; Cuba to Make Up Shortage

Washington, Jan. 24 (AP)—Continued heavy "runs" on sugar supplies will compel the government to begin rationing the commodity within a month or less, office of price administration sources said today.

Designs for rationing books are being drawn and printed, it was learned, and details of the rationing machinery are nearly perfected.

Large industrial sugar consumers already have been limited to the same supplies of sugar they received in comparable months of 1940, and this restriction has made itself felt for weeks at retail outlets.

Many grocery stores have placed arbitrary limits on the amount sold each customer and, in places where the "run" has been particularly heavy, some consumers have been unable to buy sugar in any quantities.

Following the Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, last December 7, government officials said consumer demand increased to such an extent that a full month's supply was exhausted within a week.

Of the nation's normal 6,000,000-ton sugar supply, about 1,000,000 tons were imported from the Philippines and approximately 900,000 from Hawaii. The Philippine supply has been entirely cut off and the imports from Hawaii reduced sharply.

Government officials believe increased purchases from Cuba will compensate for losses from Pacific sources, but the bulk of the Cuban crop will not be available until next month or later.

The R.E.C. has completed arrangements to buy virtually all of the 1942 Cuban sugar crop, estimated at around 3,500,000 tons.

No details of the pending rationing plan have been made public, but it was reported here that purchases probably would be limited to a figure running under three pounds a person each month. Some sources have predicted the limit would be one pound a month.

At the present time, a spokesman said, the government has no plans for rationing other foodstuffs.

Singapore Gets Breather in Japanese Air Raids on Naval Base

By ROGER D. GREENE (Associated Press War Editor)
Fresh hordes of Japanese invasion troops, supported by barges from warship guns, forced Gen. Douglas MacArthur's American-Filipino defenders to fall back in heavy and bloody fighting on the west coast of Batan Peninsula today, but fierce counter-attacks hurled the Japanese from other points.

A war department bulletin said Gen. MacArthur's troops, though fatigued by six weeks of incessant fighting, were still battling with undiminished enthusiasm and courage.

"Heavy losses were suffered on both sides," the communique said, adding that the Japanese continued to land reinforcements in Subic Bay and on the west coast of the rugged Batan Peninsula, increasing their already overwhelming numerical superiority.

A military spokesman said the Japanese apparently were trying to turn Gen. MacArthur's left flank, anchored on the South China Sea, and "smother" the defenders with mass attacks elsewhere.

The acknowledgement that the invaders had effected landings on the Batan west coast indicated that Gen. MacArthur's position had now become extremely grave.

Aside from the Philippine theatre, the war news took a brightening turn amid Allied victories at sea and in the air, while in London, Sir Stafford Cripps, retiring British ambassador to Moscow, hinted broadly that Russia—with 9,000,000 men now under arms—may join in the battle against Japan.

Meanwhile, Dutch bombers slashed at a new concentration of Japanese invasion ships off Balikpapan, on the east coast of Dutch Borneo, scoring direct hits on a big transport and a destroyer and capsizing a large passenger liner.

The Dutch have already destroyed the rich Balikpapan oil fields in pursuance of a "scorched earth" policy.

Allied victories at sea and in the air brightened the war picture today and the good news included: In Washington, a navy spokesman tersely announced the destruction of an unspecified number of Axis submarines preying on ships in Atlantic Coastal waters.

In Burma, American and British fliers shot down a record bag of 21 out of 60 Japanese planes attacking the Burmese capital, Rangoon.

A British warship operating in the far Pacific sank another Japanese submarine.

In Singapore, the absence of air attacks since yesterday morning indicated that reinforcements of 350-mile-an-hour RAF Hurricane fighters had beaten off the Japanese air force.

The Singapore radio reported a "definite pause" in the Japanese drive on the Port of Moulmein, Burma, across the bay from Rangoon, as British and native resistance sharply stiffened.

"The air force is giving splendid support to the land forces, and is already raiding Thailand air bases close to the Burma border," The broadcast said.

Role Is Emphasized
Australia's role in the struggle was emphasized as the Commonwealth's war cabinet sent new appeals to Washington and London for active assistance and declared that the war might be won or lost in the Pacific.

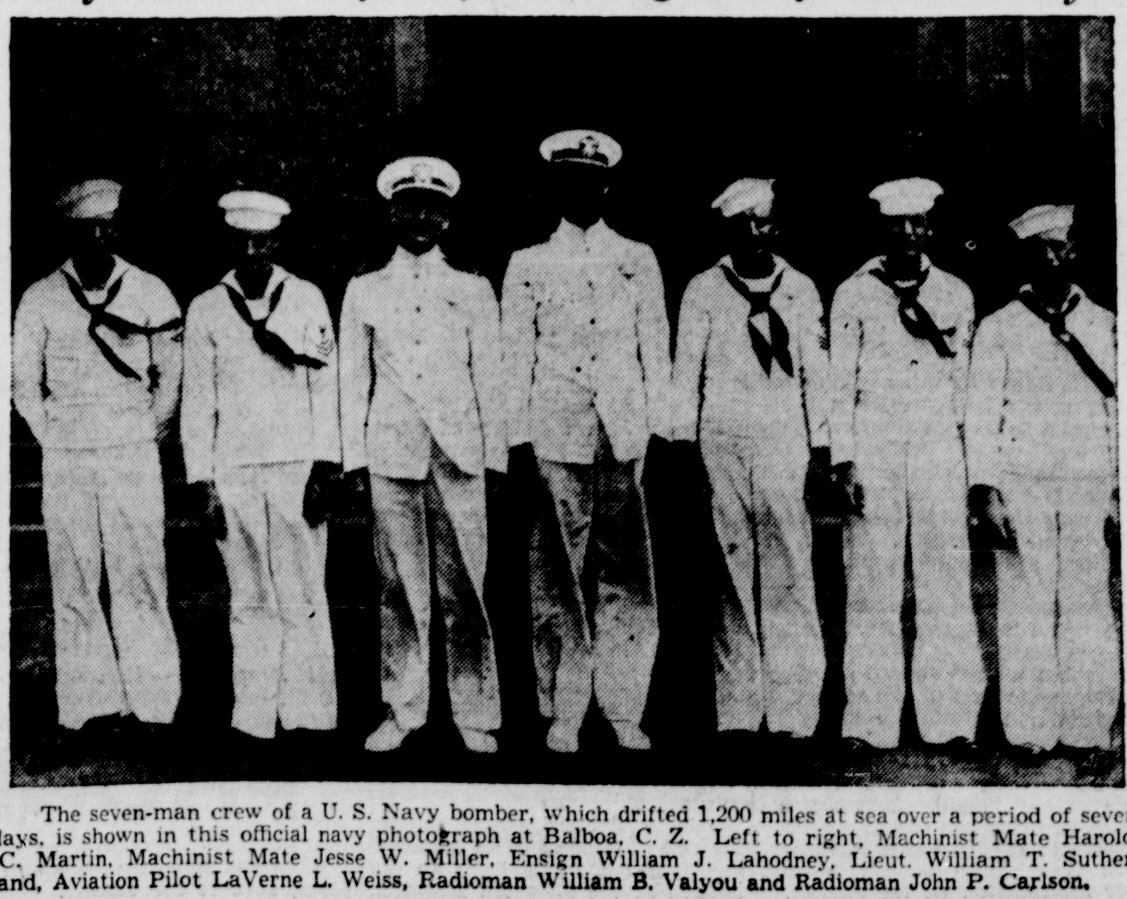

With Japan's invasion hordes swarming into the outer ring of islands off Australia's northern coastline, Deputy Prime Minister Francis Forde warned that the war in the Pacific "has now become the battle for Australia."

Australian troops on the island of Bougainville, in the Solomon chain, where the Japanese landed at Kietia, were reported to have "made contact" with the invaders.

On the Axis side of the ledger, the propaganda-spiced German radio asserted that Nazi U-boats operating for the first time in North American waters had sunk 18 merchant ships totalling 125,000 tons and two naval units.

Towns' Highway Bosses Are Present At Local Meeting

The annual meeting of town superintendents of highways with County Superintendent James F. Loughran and representatives from the state Department of Public Works and the comptroller's office was held at the court house Friday afternoon.

Ordinarily the town superintendents meet to receive instructions and to discuss mutual highway problems, but this year, Mr. Loughran said, methods and means of meeting defense problems would have a prominent place in the program of the day. He added that James S. Bixby of Poughkeepsie, district engineer in charge of the eighth district, which includes Ulster and six other nearby counties, had asked that in addition to the town superintendents, town defense chairmen and others interested in defense work be invited. In addition, Kingston city defense officials, board of public works men had been asked to attend. The occasion may arise when each may need the other, Mr. Loughran said.

The question of "what price patriotism" arose, more particularly in discussions following the adjournment of the meeting. The question came up following reference to some conflict when men who are regularly or temporarily employed by highway departments and who, by virtue of such connection would be enrolled in the Board of Public Works "mutual aid plan" were recruited by defense councils. Defense volunteers, of course, are not paid for any work they might perform in the course of an emergency caused by an air raid. Regular employees of the highway department, if called on for over time emergency work, would carry on their duties under regular conditions, so far as pay was concerned. The question, apparently, hinged on whether defense volunteers who might be called on to assist in highway work, should be placed on the pay-roll, while other defense workers, such as air raid wardens, fire control workers, listening post workers, and others, gave their services without pay.

One angle of the question brought out was the idea that in the case of paid employees, referring not only to highway work alone, the paid man is likely to be "on the job," while the volunteer may or may not be. Mr. Bixby referred to the organization of a corps of 95 volunteer auxiliary firemen in Poughkeepsie, only 45 of whom showed up when a meeting was called. He said that he would have been there. He also told of a Westchester county defense official who was paying the salary of a stenographer out of his own pocket.

William Fleckenstein, Wawarsing town superintendent, brought up the question of two of his town truck drivers who also were listed as drivers of fire trucks, serving when the fire trucks were called into action. The question was as to which of these duties these men would be expected to perform in case of emergency and further what might be their attitude in event they were paid for highway defense efforts and not for the other. Mr. Loughran said that he thought that situation could be resolved without too much difficulty.

Mr. Bixby, who said that great confusion had marked defense efforts in this country, spoke of the mutual aid plan. He said such a plan was developed at a meeting last summer, attended by Board of Public Works representatives, town superintendents, representatives of the Mayors Conference and others, and had been recommended to the governor. Nothing much was done, however, until now was declared, when the governor set up a plan for highway clearance in case of emergency.

The largest coordinated force of men and equipment to be found in the highway department as a whole, Mr. Bixby said, adding that the present force was considered fairly adequate for emergencies that might arise and there was no present plan to extend it.

A majority of the people seem to feel doubtful that there will be any bombing disaster in this territory, Mr. Bixby said, but, even though the chances of trouble are small, he felt that it would be foolhardy not to have a working plan which could be put into immediate operation in case emergency should arise. He declared, we might not be able to move fast enough when trouble occurred.

George Nickerson, assistant to Mr. Bixby's department, gave details of the mutual aid plan, which he said was simple. There are 11 districts in the state, New York city being one and the others comprising the regular Department of Public Works districts. They are headed by a state coordinator. In case of need the town and village officials report to the county superintendent of highways and he, if necessary, can call on district and state officials for help.

Although a defense measure now, the plan probably would be continued in times of peace. It would have been of great help during the hurricane some years ago, he said. Mr. Nickerson also referred to legislation now pending in Albany to pay all defense workers for emergency work, to pay for any equipment that might be loaned and damaged and to provide for compensation insurance.

K. G. Bauer of Poughkeepsie, maintenance engineer, advised the town superintendents to take care of their truck tires. He said that their headquarters in Poughkeepsie had been designated as a storage place for tires for state institutions, hospitals and state police vehicles.

William A. Maloney, assistant examiner of the highway department, discussed the question of financing, in the case of men employed in highway work and later took up the question of town accounts with the town superintendents attending the meeting.

Returns One Dollar

Bennington, Vt., Jan. 24 (AP)—A former employee of the H. T. Cushman Manufacturing Co., now living in Asheville, N.C., has returned a dollar of his 1927 wages because he loafed on the job.

In a letter accompanying the money, the man said he had talked and joked for two hours while supposedly at work, and that he was returning the money he was paid for those two hours. The company thought the letter was enough and sent back the dollar.

Recreation Problems

In connection with the Ulster County Home Bureau recreation program, a group met at the home bureau office this morning to discuss recreation problems. Miss Helen N. Bradburn has offered her services as instructor for the courses. This morning topics considered were: The importance of recreation in a defense program for home makers in every day situations, work on body building, posture and several group games. Those who attended were the recreation leaders of Ulster County Home Bureau; among whom are Mrs. Howard A. Lewis, chairman of the project; Mrs. Harry Sutton of Clintonville, assistant chairman; Mrs. Audrey Roosa, Mrs. Milnor Travis, Mrs. Gordon Boice of Lake Katrine; Mrs. Dennis Corey of Wallkill; Mrs. Norman Swiebold of Nanapanoch; Mrs. Vincent Connelly of Kingston, and Mrs. Percy Gazley of Accord.

Health Meeting

The health committee of the Ulster County Home Bureau will meet at the office Monday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. Miss Elizabeth Myers of the Department of Public Welfare will discuss the qualifications necessary for good boarders for children. Dr. Hollis Ingraham of the district department of health will speak about health conditions of Ulster county and what can be done about them. Health leaders will be given clinic lists. The main discussion will take place with Mrs. DeWitt Crowell of Wallkill and Miss Parsons will also lead a group on "What is Being Done to Build a Concept of Health as a Public Responsibility." Arrangements will also be made that day for the second lesson on mental health.

Must Drop Word 'Tire'

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 24 (AP)—Because of possible future rationing measures for other articles, local automobile tire rationing boards were advised today to eliminate the word "tire" from their titles. Maurice F. Neufeldt, director of the State Bureau of Rationing, also ordered local agencies to operate on a semi-permanent basis with office hours known to the public.

New York, Jan. 24 (AP)—Stock market steam again was concentrated in the rails today with many industrial leaders, as in the past week, doing little or nothing.

Demand for transportation issues appeared at the start and favorites in this department extended yesterday's late advance by fractions to around 2 points. Minor improvement was the rule elsewhere at the close although exceptions were plentiful.

Dealings quickened at intervals and transfers for the short session approximated 300,000 shares against 220,000 last Saturday.

Commodities were a bit mixed after their strong swing of Friday.

Among stocks Santa Fe, Chicago Great Western Preferred and Gulf Mobile & Ohio Preferred posted new 1941-42 highs. Senior shares of Pere Marquette, Nickel Plate, Erie and Southern Railway also pushed upward. Plus signs were attached to Great Northern, Southern Pacific, Nickel Plate Common, Fajardo Sugar, South Porto Rico Sugar, Allied Chemical, J. C. Penney, American Can, Texas Co. and Kennecott. Steels, motors, rubbers, aircraft and utilities were extremely narrow.

ings, said he believed it was "not the policy of the Russian government to spread Communism over Europe."

"The Russians do not care what kind of government European countries have as long as it is not Nazi," he added.

In response to a question about the attitude of the Stalin government regarding religion, he said the "government still believes religion is not good for the people and it is being discouraged, but not suppressed."

"Stalin's position among the people is 10 times as strong now as it was when the war started," he added. "The success of his strategy and his personal courage increased his popularity."

Sir Stafford said the greatest single factor in the Russian success had been the spirit of the people which enabled them to carry on despite enormous suffering and tremendous transportation difficulties.

"Some districts are short of food because transportation is all taken up by war needs," he said. "Immense suffering from cold has been caused by bomb and shell blasted windows, he explained, saying that once the windows were broken it was impossible to heat homes in temperatures 40 degrees below zero—and even heating systems froze."

Sir Stafford described the Russian situation in the street as friendly toward the British and said the average Russian greatly admired the United States mechanical genius. But he is not well informed on foreign affairs, Sir Stafford added.

The former ambassador, who has been prominently mentioned as a possible figure in a reorganization of the cabinet, answered all questions on domestic affairs.

the enemy. That policy was established long ago by the British admiralty and was adopted by the U. S. Navy after President Roosevelt ordered the "rattlesnakes of the Atlantic" hunted down last September.

Respecting public cooperation in this secrecy phase of a war of nerves, a spokesman gave assurance that the navy will take care of enemy submarines, and the people can help the navy and the country by keeping quiet about what they see or hear of the process or its results.

"Even if you have seen a submarine captured or destroyed," he urged, "keep it to yourself. Let the enemy guess what happened."

Thus his statement, issued for the general public, raised the interesting possibility that some members of the public might have witnessed, from shore or ship, the vanishing of an undersea raider. But the navy's rule of silence effectively curtailed any development of such speculation.

A similar policy of silence, particularly with regard to whispering campaigns, was advocated by Brigadier General Frank E. Lowe, assistant to the army chief of staff.

And in an address here yesterday before the National Defense Forum sponsored by the general Federation of Women's Clubs, he interpolated a remark that "if we don't fight in all four corners of the world I would be surprised."

In another capital development the House unanimously passed and sent to the Senate a $125,872,174 appropriation for the combat planes and 10,000 training craft, together with large quantities of spare engines, plane parts, bombs and chemical warfare service supplies. Lieutenant General H. H. Arnold, deputy chief of staff for air, had told a House committee that the appropriation was a step in building "toward our offensive knockout blow."

the commonwealth's army minister. The immediate aid, says Forde, should go not to Australia but to Malaya, for "the only thing that can stop the battle for Australia from being fought right on our own beaches is immediate Allied reinforcement of the Malay Peninsula which will recall to that pivotal point of the war forces which Japan now considers herself free to use in Australian waters."

More Women Needed In Nursing Profession

"Getting ahead in an American tradition, and nursing offers the best chance for a young woman to get ahead, in the finest sense of that word," says Miss Nanette Kerkwitz, president of District No. 11, New York State Nurses' Association.

Miss Berkwitz today pointed out that more administrative positions are open to women in nursing than in any other profession. The superintendent of the Army Air hospital is a major, and every nurse entering that corps has the rank of second lieutenant.

More and more hospitals, she said, are being administered by registered professional nurses, and the rewards of nursing are equal to the demands it makes, and for a woman who is eager to use her mind and hands in the service of humanity, no other work is so satisfying.

Miss Berkwitz said that any young woman desiring a nursing career, and is a high school graduate, should write to the New York State Nurses' Association, 152 Washington avenue, Albany, for information on the subject.

vessels, of which three were in the immediate vicinity of New York harbor," the broadcast said, quoting the high command.

Actually, the closest sinking in the New York area was a tanker torpedoed off Long Island, 75 miles from New York City. Only six ships have been reported victims of torpedo attacks in Atlantic coastal lanes of the United States since Wednesday, January 14.

On the Malayan battlefield, British headquarters reported that heavy fighting raged without decision in the critical battle 60 miles north of Singapore, with British Australian and Imperial Indian troops fiercely attacking the main Japanese invasion army.

Roaring over the "Green Hell" jungles, RAF fliers bombed and machine-gunned Japanese troops and transports in the Labis sector, in the middle of the 80-mile front which zigzags across the narrow Malay peninsula.

On the East coast, where the Japanese had driven to the Mersing sector, 65 miles north of Singapore, British headquarters tersely reported "no change" in the situation.

An official Tokyo broadcast—and these, it should be noted, are frequently exaggerated—asserted that Japanese troops had driven the Australian 8th Division and the British 45th Battalion out of their defense positions and occupied the town of Parit Sulong.

The broadcast also claimed that Japanese vanguards advancing south after capturing the town of Labis, 80 miles north of Singapore, had approached within a mile of Yong Peng, 19 miles due west of Kuala Lumpur.

Kuala Lumpur is only 50 miles north of Singapore, in central Johore state.

Seven Japanese airmen were blasted from the skies over Rangoon, the capital of Burma and port of entry for supplies to China in one raid yesterday; 14 in a second.

"What you Yanks and our boys are doing today beats almost anything in the history of the battle of Britain," a veteran RAF officer said. "Give them better planes and the Japs will get sicker and sicker of this war."

Redeemer Church To Conduct 45th Birthday Service

The 45th anniversary of Redeemer Lutheran Church, Wurts and Rogers streets, Kingston, will be celebrated tomorrow morning when the festival sermon will be preached by the Rev. Dr. Samuel Trexler, president of the United Synod of New York, who is coming from New York for the occasion. The service is to be conducted by the Rev. Russell Samuel Gaenzle, sixth on the roll of pastors who have served the church, and who has been with the congregation since 1934.

Redeemer Church, which numbers 1,175 baptized members, was organized by laymen of Trinity Church, mother church of Kingston Lutheranism, January 24, 1897, for the purpose of providing services for the community in the English language. The meeting took place in the basement of Trinity Church and the three laymen were William Hillebrandt, Frederick Jacob Walter and Frederick Stephan. The church was incorporated March 17, 1898. Its pastors have been the Rev. William Frederick Bacher, (1897-1908), the Rev. Philip Schlosses Baringer, (1916-1920), the Rev. William John Nelson, (1921-1927), the Rev. Oscar Edgar Brandorff, (1928-1934) and Pastor Gaenzle.

First Worship

Redeemer congregation first met for worship in the basement of Trinity Church and then in Liscomb's Opera House. A large house on the corner of Wurts and Rogers streets was then purchased and the building remodeled to serve as a congregation hall and parsonage. This was dedicated June 13, 1897. The present attractive church building of granite in broken ashlar, was dedicated May 18, 1913.

The church has 218 pupils in the Sunday School. One of the sons of Redeemer Church entered the Lutheran ministry, the Rev. J. Christian Port, now serving in Argentine, South America. During his missionary tour of the southern republics last summer, Dr. Trexler met Pastor Port, who traveled from his location at Eldorado, in the territory of Missions, to meet the visiting Synodical President of Buenos Aires. Dr. Trexler has related his experiences below the Equator in his latest book, "A Pastor Wings Over South America," recently published.

He has been closely connected with the work of the local congregation for many years. The community-at-large is extended an invitation to attend this sermon. The musical program for Sunday morning includes: Prelude, Villanella, John Ireland Anthems; "Open Our Eyes." W. C. McFarlane "Jerusalem, O Turn Thee to the Lord".....Gounod Postlude, Fugue in B flat....Bach

Books Gathered for Men in Service

Shown above is the group of books that have been gathered under the direction of Superintendent of Schools Arthur J. Laidlaw, chairman of the book drive for the men in service. There has been no official figure given out as to the amount of books collected, but it is believed that there are more than 1,200 books in the above collection.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

America First

Watertown, N. Y. — Samuel S. Strobert suspended business at the gas station he operated for 23 years and tacked up a sign:

"Closed—Uncle Sam must win." "The government comes first," said Strobert, entering defense work.

Sad Story

Kansas City, Kas. — Police, suspicious of a big, black hearse's frequent trips to dry Kansas 3.2 taverns, peeked inside. They found spirits—18 cases of them—and arrested the driver on a charge of illegally transporting intoxicating liquor.

Romance in Bloom

Madison, Wis. — A 23-year-old University of Wisconsin student confessed in court he had stolen $40 worth of orchids from a University greenhouse to send to a girl friend. Botany department officials said the thefts nullified several years of experiments. The court deferred sentence.

Saws Wood, Eats It, Too

Springfield, Ill.—Arthur Clause's habit of taking after-dinner naps

No Use Waiting Around

Oklahoma City — The power of suggestion is strong to Corp. Robert B. Rickerson, Chillicothe, Mo. The right motor of a bomber began sputtering and Lieut. R. A. Osborn of Culver, Ind., the pilot, told Rickerson: "You'd better prepare to bail out."

Osborn landed the plane safely and was unharmed. Rickerson, who hadn't waited to hear more, sprained his ankle in a parachute landing.

Economy

St. Louis — Andrew Haverstick, member of the tire rationing board believes in conservation in office furniture, as well as in tires. He proved it when he brought an old Christmas tree to headquarters. The limbs had been trimmed, all of it neatly polished.

"It's a hat and coat rack," he explained, "something we've needed ever since we opened shop."

Resources of facts, information and personnel of the Department of Commerce are being drawn upon heavily by defense agencies of the government.

Catholic Charities Drive

The Most Rev. Francis J. Spellman, archbishop of New York, has designated the week of April 12 for the 23rd annual appeal of the Catholic Charities of the Archdiocese of New York, it was announced Friday by the Right Rev. Monsignor Robert F. Keegan, P.A. Monsignor Keegan is executive director of New York Catholic Charities and secretary for charities to the archbishop. The week of April 12 will be devoted to the house-to-house solicitation of Catholics in the 376 parishes in the archdiocese. Monsignor Keegan announced, and will be preceded by a general canvass without respect to creed by the special gifts committee of the archbishop's committee of the laity. Archbishop Spellman will serve as chairman of the 1942 appeal.

SUGAR

A little more sportsmanship would sweeten up the sugar situation in this country. There is no sugar famine. Available information is that there's enough for everybody — if everybody will play fair. When people spread rumors of famine, or start protecting themselves by going around the neighborhood and buying up all the sugar that anybody will sell them, instead of patronizing their own grocers as usual and playing fair about quantity, then of course there is trouble.

Before things go any farther, in this and other matters, let us all get the main fact clearly in mind. We're all in the same boat together, and there's no sense in rocking the boat. This fact applies alike, whether we're shipwrecked at sea or merely subjected to a few unusual restrictions at home. Our safety is collective. It depends on all-round cooperation, whether we're in the army or in the kitchen or in school. From now on, the fellow who tries to get special benefits or privileges for himself is cheating. And such conduct eventually hurts everybody, even the cheater himself.

WALKING AND FLYING

Dr. Ashton Graybiel, writing in Aviation Medicine, says if your heart is strong enough to let you walk, it's strong enough to let you fly. Heart failure may be precipitated by lack of oxygen due to high altitudes, he says, but this seldom happens except in the most severe cases. In his research he found that four cases of severe coronary artery disease had been subjected to 45 minutes of air conditions like those at 14,500 feet and suffered no pain or ill effects.

Only three in a total of 7,000,000 airline passengers have died of heart failure while in the air. That is so small a proportion that it is possible the air had nothing to do with it—death from heart failure might have come to those three on land at the same time. Dr. Graybiel's advice is, however, that persons with certain definite heart ailments should not fly. They should not rapidly enter high altitudes under any conditions.

It is sensible for anyone who suspects he may have difficulty with high altitudes, whether he has heart trouble or not, to get a look-see by his physician before he goes up too high. It may not hurt him, but he'd better be sure.

Great is the adaptability of the human frame. It is not so many years since it was believed that no human being could survive speed greater than thirty miles per hour. Now they take 300 miles per hour and altitudes of 10,000 feet and come right down at the next regular stop and go about their business.

WORLD'S END

For 1500 years the world, when it wanted to know about geography, consulted Ptolemy, the great Greek geographer of the second century. What Ptolemy did not know was not knowledge. What he did know, sometimes, was not knowledge either; for even when he was not wrong, his information was often vague, needing to be interpreted before it could be understood.

The farther Ptolemy got away from home, the more uncertain he became. But he made one thing very clear: a city called Cattigara lay at the end of the world, and beyond it there was nothing.

Cattigara, after all these years, comes again into the news. For Cattigara, experts think, is none other than Malacca, which the Japanese are impelling. Commanding a famous ocean highway, Malacca has been owned and prized by Malays, Portuguese, Dutch and English. Once at the end of the world, it is now at the very center of the news.

JAP FEET

Some observers don't seem much worried about the way the Japanese are spreading themselves like a plague over the islands of the western Pacific. One of them, DeWitt Mackenzie, writes that while the Japs have taken over considerable territory, and will probably take a lot more, there will be less grief about it than most of us seem to expect.

"As it looks now," he says, "we shall not have to take the innumerable islands back one by one. When the time arrives that the Allies can put a great force of bombers over Tokyo and other Japanese cities, and start tearing them up by the roots, the islands will come back to us automatically. That is to say, when the Mikado's mainland has to give up, the whole Nipponese structure will collapse."

Maybe so. But the Japs are tough and persistent, and they are getting their feet into an awful lot of doors.

BACK TO TOWN

That city dwellers have been living more and more in the suburbs is well known. Many cities have found entire areas within their bounds collapsing, as buildings which proved unprofitable have been torn down. More and more vacant lots, sometimes used for parking, appear, in down-town areas, until in some quarters cities are getting to resemble empty shells.

All this, of course, is due to the increased use of the automobile. With driving sharply cut down, perhaps even suspended except for vital businesses, will today's tendency to decentralize go into reverse? Will suburban motorists move back to town to save the long journey, and fill up the empty spaces?

It would probably be better if they did not. The tendency to suburban life amid grass, green trees and unpolluted air, has been health-giving. Slums and skyscraper apartments cannot, in the matter of health, compete with less thickly populated areas. Yet why should there be slums? City life might be greatly improved by a modern reconstruction movement.

Tip to motorists who still have tires: Keep a record of their numbers, for identification in case of loss.

Old attics will do their part in winning the war. It's amazing what resources are stored there.

Happy thought: What most of us have been calling music will probably not survive the war.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

CORRECTION OF CROSS EYES

When a child has cross eyes, his parents are naturally upset because they realize that cross eyes do more than spoil the child's appearance. They are thinking of future days when the grown child may develop an inferiority complex which may remain with him always. Yet they feel unable to face the thought of operation on their young child.

Cross eyes are corrected by other means than operation? Yes. But, as pointed out by Dr. Brittain Ford Payne, New York City, in Archives of Pediatrics (diseases of children) the cause must be known if treatment is to be successful.

What causes cross eyes? Cross eyes may be due to some disturbance in the eye itself such as a lengthening or shortening of the muscles that control the movements of the eyeball, to some disease of the eye, to some disturbance elsewhere in the body, to the non-use of one eye due to defective vision, or to some family or individual nervous or emotional disturbance.

After making sure that no general condition is responsible for the cross eyes, the physician tries to gain a correct idea of the extent of the squint under different circumstances, when the child is not aware of observation, when he is at rest, tired, calm, or excited. Examination of the eye after use of belladonna (atropine) for a week is necessary. "Increase in the amount of the squint while under influence of the atropine shows that early operation is advisable."

The most accurate method for measuring the amount of squint present is by the use of prisms with the patient looking at twenty or more feet and at thirteen inches. These are the distances in general use for measuring "distant" and "close" or reading vision. The use of the prisms shows which set of muscles is at fault and serves as a guide to the type of operation to be done.

Corrective lenses are then prescribed and exercises to strengthen weak or unused muscles are planned.

"If the condition is not corrected by wearing of glasses or patiently supervised exercises for four to six months, children as young as two years should be operated upon."

This means, then, that parents should not wait to see if the eyes will correct themselves, but put their child in care of an eye specialist. Treatment by lenses and exercises may be all that is necessary.

EXEMPTIONS ALLOWED COUPLES MARRIED DURING TAXABLE YEAR

The credit for dependents as well as the personal exemption is required to be prorated where a change of status occurs during the taxable year, except where the taxpayer is eligible and elects to compute the tax at the optional rates with the use of the simplified Form 1040A, and these credits are allowable not only for the purpose of computing the normal tax but also the surtax. The proration is to be made in accordance with the number of months the taxpayer occupied each status, and fractional part of a month is to be disregarded unless it amounts to more than half a month, in which case it is considered a month.

For example, if a single man and a single woman were married on July 20, 1941, and lived together during the remainder of the year, they would be entitled to a personal exemption of $1,500 in a joint return on Form 1040 for the calendar year 1941, which amount is seven-twelfths of $750 for the husband while single, plus seven-twelfths of $750 for the wife while single, plus five-twelfths of $1,500 for the period during which they were married. If during the year 1941 the husband or the wife had the status of the head of a family prior to their marriage, he or she would be entitled to his or her pro rata share of the personal exemption. If $1,500 allowed the head of a family for the period prior to their marriage, instead of that allowed a single person. For the period of their marriage any exemption to which either might be entitled as the head of a family would be merged in the joint personal exemption. The joint personal exemption allowable in the case of a couple who were married and living together during the entire year may not exceed $1,500.

If a child under 18 years of age reaches the age of 18 years during the taxable year, the credit of $400 is required to be prorated in the same manner as the personal exemption. For example, should the child's eighteenth birthday fall on June 30, the parent would be entitled to claim $200 credit for the dependent child—that is, one-half of $400. The same rule applies to dependents where a change of status occurs during the taxable year.

If the tax is computed at the optional rates with the use of the simplified Form 1040A, the taxpayer's status on the last day of the taxable year governs the determination of whether a person is living with husband or wife, is the head of a family, or is a dependent.

Washington Daybook

Washington — Answering the mail orders:

K. L. Terre Haute, Ind.—There really is no confusion in the army over the word "jeep." The name is now fondly applied to those little bantam gasoline buggies which are only 11 feet long and a shade over three feet high. They are used for almost everything under the wartime sun but officials think they are going to be most effective in combatting tanks.

A fleet of these can maneuver anti-tank guns into flanking position long before a tank can get into effective battle range of its objective. The only confusion results from the fact that the term "jeep" was first applied to larger cars of smaller design used to transport officers in the field. The name originally came from the manufacturers' model designation "GP." No Army man will misunderstand you when you refer to jeeps, and he would also know what you meant, if you called them blitz-buggies, peeps or panzer-killers.

Mrs. M. R. T., Brookline, Mass.—I don't believe that Wake and Midway Islands have any past history of great importance; but Guam has a footnote in history that makes it unique. On March 6, 1921, Magellan brought his little flotilla of three vessels into Guam harbor.

After more than three months at sea, there was hardly a member of the three crews who wasn't sick or dying. It was the first time any known member of the white race had ever set foot on the islands of the Pacific. It's interesting that when Magellan sailed into the harbor he noted in his log that this island would be called "Isle of the Lateen Sails" when he left, he scratched out the name and substituted "Ladrones"—which meant "Isle of Thieves."

The natives had swarmed overboard at odds of 100 to one and stolen everything on the ships that could carry away. Perhaps now would be a good time to call Guam "Ladrones" again—until we get it back.

P. B., Springfield, Mo.—The government has had only moderate success with its slogan business. "Keep 'em Flying" was given a big build-up and probably has caught on better than anything else and some slogans hereabouts think it may outlast all others since aviation is such a vital factor in this war.

In spite of the fact that government handouts and many other communications carry the line at top or bottom of the page, "Remember Pearl Harbor," it hasn't started to rool off the tongues around here like a good slogan should.

Oddly enough, the most frequently seen slogan in Washington is the least often repeated. There is hardly a government building that doesn't have somewhere prominently displayed in it, in letters one to three feet high, the slogan, "Time Is Short."

T. N. S., Shreveport, La.—Perhaps you haven't seen much about the decentralization of government agencies because as I pointed out in a previous column, this is strictly a storm in the Washington teacup. Locally, it probably has resulted in more argument and absorbed more space in the capital newspapers than the price control bill. The President has just put his foot down—and hard—on those members of Congress who are objecting to the shift of 12 agencies involving about 10,000 workers.

The feeling of the administration is that with 1,000 new workers coming into the capital every week, and the estimate of the civil service commission BEFORE war broke out that hiring would go on at that rate at least until midsummer, it's apparent that some drastic action has to be taken to accommodate the necessary war workers.

J. V., Santa Monica, Calif.—The only way that I know that you can assure yourself a hotel room on arrival in Washington is to get your reservation (about two weeks) in advance, make a substantial down payment on it and get a receipt from the hotel that such payment has been made. That's a contract.

Don't be too harsh on the hotel people, though. Suppose you had a hostelry and a daily average of at least half again as many tenants as you could take care of—many of them "big names" or big spenders or both?

Americans Are Undergoing Considerable Strain in Waiting for Announcement of U. S. Counter Attacks

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Jan. 24—Suppression of military information may be hard on an expectant populace but it is even harder on those who know what America has done since Pearl Harbor's tragedy on December 7th last but cannot tell about it.

To see the headlines from day to day describing offensive action by the Japanese while American participation in any counter attack is scant, and yet to know that shortly there will be action which cannot now be revealed is a strain for our military and naval people that is well-nigh indescribable.

National morale, however, has to be bolstered and that's why the office of facts and figures has disclosed some things already. One is the general route to the Far East which will be used to carry America's reinforcements. Anybody with a map showing distances can easily see how impractical it is to send long range bombers across the Pacific and, of course, how long and hazardous is the voyage of ships carrying the fighter type of airplane used to defend bombers.

But the route which goes by way of the East Coast of South America and across to Africa over a short stretch of ocean to the West Coast of Africa is a feasible course for long range bombers. The other day a Pan-American airways group of fliers came back by a series of relays from China to New York in a week's time, traveling at an average of only 100 miles an hour. Bombers can get to Burma in much less time. Some day, when American policy permits greater concentrations of strength behind the Chinese, the route by air to Burma over Africa and southern Asia will be much traveled.

While many war weapons can go by air, the distance and time necessary for voyages by sea limit American action for the moment. The Japanese have figured this out and that's why they are trying to spread out and occupy as many landing places as possible from which to operate their fighter and bomber planes. It will be an advantage to them that it may take several months of fighting to overcome, but that in the end it will be overcome seems to be assured according to the experts.

Anybody with a knowledge of the speed of the average cargo ship can figure out how long it takes to get to the Netherlands East Indies and Australia, for instance, from the Atlantic seaboard and around the southern tip of Africa at Cape of Good Hope and through the Indian Ocean. Some estimates range as high as two months depending on the speed of the ships.

But once a flotilla of supply ships arrives after six or eight weeks, then a steady stream of ships will be coming in nearly every day, and from that time forward the Japanese will not have the advantage they possess today. Unquestionably the whole mobilization plan of the United States Army and the war plans of the United States Navy went into action the day after Pearl Harbor. That's about seven weeks ago. In another month supplies ought to be arriving in large quantities.

Now the American navy cannot be everywhere at the same time and there would be no sense in going out to find the scattered Japanese fleet in the Pacific, when there is important convoy duty to be performed in meeting American cargo ships that come from ports of the United States. There will be time enough to go after the Japanese fleet in a large scale action when the job of conveying and aerial protection is further advanced.

Nobody except high officials can speak authoritatively about what happened on the fateful days immediately following Pearl Harbor but the results of those orders will in due time be reflected in the headlines telling about the fighting. The important fact to remember is that it takes time to get to the Far East, time to unload and assemble equipment, and time to organize fighting units. The American people must be patient in the interim. The advantage of the surprise tactics of the Japanese may last three or four months but beyond that period it will be steadily diminished.

Several things combine to make American experts confident. First they believe the fighting spirit and morale of the American forces is unsurpassed. Second, Americans are skillful pilots and masterful handlers of ships. Above all they are resourceful in an emergency and there will be much opportunity for individual performances, as has already been shown in the feats of heroism officially announced to date.

In brief, the army is on the move. The navy is already in action, and the bombers and fighter planes are on their way to destinations and fighting areas which must for the present be a secret. (Reproduction Rights Reserved)

ELLENVILLE

Matron Honored

Ellenville, Jan. 23 — Wawarsing Chapter O. E. S., held a reception Monday evening for the newly installed worthy matron, Miss Phyllis Burton. The regular meeting was held preceding the affair.

A degree was given by 15 officers, headed by Mrs. D. F. Vanderlyn and Mrs. Eleanor Wilkoff, during which Mrs. Wallace Budd, district deputy grand matron, sang "The Four Leaf Clover."

The guest of honor was presented with a quilted satin robe from the chapter and she also received many gifts from members and friends.

Among those present were: Miss Alice Scarsfield, grand treasurer of the Grand Chapter of the O. E. S., and Miss Ethel M. Jones of Kingston.

Refreshments were served after the meeting in the banquet hall, at tables decorated with silver horse shoes and candles set in a base covered with four leaf clovers.

Village Notes

Ellenville, Jan. 23 — About 300 people attended the annual card party sponsored by the auxiliary of the Veterans' Memorial Hospital which was held at St. Mary's Tuesday evening. Refreshments consisting of sandwiches, cake and coffee were served.

A surprise birthday celebration was held Saturday evening at the home of Marvin E. Terwilliger of Post street in honor of his 88th birthday. Mr. Terwilliger was presented with a large birthday cake and many cards, telegrams, flowers and other gifts.

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

In glancing through an old scrap book of the days of before the first World War in 1918, and in the early 1920's I wonder how many of the older readers recall the harvesting of ice from the Hudson river and the Rondout creek during the winter months.

Ice harvesting was strenuous work, and it was not overpaid for I recall reading that during the winter of 1922-23 some of the ice harvesters were striking for a $4-day.

The harvesting of the crop of natural ice from the river and creek in this vicinity meant work for large numbers of men during the winter, and many depended upon what they earned during the few weeks of the ice harvest to carry them through the winter as there was but little out door work done in the cold period.

Ice loaders, who may have worked in the harvest, will easily recall getting up at daybreak, eating a hearty breakfast and then walking several miles to the river or creek where they worked until late in the afternoon; sometimes in subzero temperatures.

Hard work with but little pay did not discourage the men of those days who enjoyed but few of the pleasures that those of the present day enjoy. There were no radios and but few central heating plants in the days at the turn of the century, while electric lights were a luxury. Talking movies had not yet appeared.

I also recall the days of boxing which was staged in old Griffiths Hall on lower Hasbrouck avenue, shortly after the close of the first World War. Among the local men who appeared in the ring were Vince Coffey and his brother, Hub Coffey.

Vince Coffey, who had made quite a record for himself as a boxer while serving in the army during the first World War was favorably known with fans of Wild Willie Chrystal in several bouts. Chrystal was quite a noted boxer in those days, but Vince, in the fights I saw, outboxed him.

One local promoter I recall was John J. Costello, better known as "Deppy" to his host of friends.

For Costello is now employed by the state highway department. In the days that he was active promoting boxing, the city he was serving as city marshal.

I also recall the out door bouts that were staged on the old Kingston Fair Grounds where the municipal stadium now stands, and there were some excellent bouts staged by Bill Singer.

Arthur Constant of Cape avenue.

Miss Mabel Mericle and nephew George Mericle of Kingston were visitors in town on Saturday and called on the former's uncle, George Mericle.

Mrs. Hattie Vanderlyn is able to be around again after having been ill at her home for several days.

Miss Ethel Wilkins of Kingston and Miss Kathryn Wilkins of Ellenville visited Sunday with their mother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Clearwater at Deposit.

Mr. Van Valkenburgh Honored at Dinner By M. J. M. Faculty

Thursday evening, the faculty of the Myron J. Michael School entertained at a dinner in honor of Clifford H. Van Valkenburgh, Jr., who expects to enter the service of the army. The dinner was held in the lunch room of the school which was decorated in patriotic colors. There were figures representing Mr. Van Valkenburgh in 1942 and 1943 and an Uncle Sam centerpiece. Candles were favors and the patriotic theme was further carried out in the red, white and blue candles.

Principal Frank L. Meagher acted as master of ceremonies for the evening. Edward Sylvester on behalf of the faculty presented Mr. Van Valkenburgh with a gift. Special guests of the evening were Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Van Valkenburgh, Sr. The dinner was arranged by Miss Alice Costello, Mrs. George Dingee and Miss Isabel Malone.

In addition to those mentioned above the following were present at the dinner: Mr. and Mrs. DeWitt Wells, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Dunn, Mr. and Mrs. William Chazenoff, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Russell, Mrs. Edward Sylvester, Mrs. J. C. Fraser, Mrs. Ida Sherman, Mrs. Harold Akley, the Misses Ruth Mulford, Martha Barnett, Ada Fuller, Ione Kin-kade, Fannie Williams, Clara Ostrander, Ruth Glendinning, Elsie Phillips, Flora Davison, Shirley Dunham and Harold Bunting, Harry Sheffer, Alfred Bruckert, George Dingee, Kenneth Appleton and Michael Franko.

SHOULD A MAN ESCORTING WOMAN ENTER ELEVATOR AHEAD OF HER?

A man tells me that the other day in mentioning several occasions when it is permissible—sometimes even preferable—that a gentleman go ahead of a lady, I did not include entering an elevator. He asks whether this omission was intentional or an oversight.

It probably had not occurred to me because the answer to this depends upon whether he is with the lady or whether she is a stranger. He would never go ahead of a lady whom he is accompanying except in a dense crowd when he might either wedge the way for her, or in a packed elevator, if he were on the doorknob of her, he would be obliged to go out first. But under ordinary uncrowded circumstances, he would not get on an elevator or leave one ahead of any woman—except as already said, when it would be better to go with the crowd rather than try to block it, in order to let any other person precede him.

Send Greeting Cards

Dear Mrs. Post: Should a printed condolence card be addressed to Mr. and Mrs., or just to the one who is nearest relative of the deceased?

Answer: Much as I like greeting cards and sincerely as I believe they have been and are a very real help in holding friendships that might otherwise drift apart, the only excuse for sending a printed card in place of a personal letter of condolence, would be actual inability to compose such a letter.

In other words, people who write with reasonable facility really must take the trouble to write notes—or at least messages—of condolence. On the other hand, if it is a question of choosing between sending a card or no message at all, then send the card by all means and address it to Mr. and Mrs. Or if you know one member of the family very well and the other not at all, then address it to the one.

Hostess Is Seated Last

Dear Mrs. Post: Please tell me whether the hostess sits down at her place at table before the last of her guests. You have said that guests sit down as soon as they find their places—unless there is a notable guest of honor for whom they remain standing. But the hostess would hardly sit down ahead of anyone, would she?

Answer: No. The hostess naturally sits down after her women guests, or at least she sits down with the last ones.

Mrs. Post is sorry she can no longer answer personal letters. She is glad however to have many printed slips on a variety of subjects to offer to her readers. Today's slip is "INTRODUCTIONS." Be sure to send a three-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Mrs. Post, in care of Kingston Daily Freeman, P. O. Box 150, Times Square Station, New York, N. Y. Letters cannot be mailed unless self-addressed envelope bears correct amount of postage. (Released by The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

Miss Katherine Murphy Will Attend Conference

Miss Katherine M. Murphy, R. N., executive secretary of the Ulster County Tuberculosis and Health Association, has accepted an invitation to participate in a three-day conference at Syracuse, January 22 to 24, to consider emergency tactics in civilian defense to prevent the spread of increase in tuberculosis and venereal disease.

The meeting is called by the State Committee on Tuberculosis and Public Health of the State. Charities Aid Association to perfect cooperative wartime services of voluntary health agencies employing Christmas seal funds to assist in the control of tuberculosis and venereal diseases. Included will be progress reports on the enterprise for the substantial eradication of tuberculosis in upstate New York by 1960.

Writing Letters Can Be Made Easy

"Oh, Why Can't I Write Well?"

"Woe is me!" you think, "I try so hard, I use up so much paper, and I just know he'll be bored to death with my letter!" But wait a minute. Are you sure he'll be bored? Your news may not be much, but he'll love reading it if it's told right—and you can easily tell it right.

Don't just line up facts in little blunt sentences: "Henry and Midge called for us. He drove his old car. We went to the movies." Pick the high spots and dress them up. "Henry drove up in his jalopy with a HORRIBLE clanking noise. Midge was so embarrassed!"

Another trick is to use the exact word, the "picture phrase." Not a "very good" speech, but "deeply moving" or "inspiring."

As you read your letter over, comb out grammar snarls—easy to find when you know how: "I laid down to sleep," corrected, becomes "I lay down." "Different than," becomes "different from." Our 32-page booklet has correct forms for common grammar mistakes; suggests topics for friendly letters; helps you find vivid words and phrases for everyday thoughts. Has 24 correct model letters—including business, friendly, social.

Send 10 cents (plus one cent to cover cost of mailing) for your copy of "Good Letter-Writing Made Easy" to The Kingston Daily Freeman, Home Service, 635 Sixth Avenue, New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly, your name, address, and the name of booklet.

PLANNING. Have you noticed how carefully people plan a long motor trip they intend taking? Not a detail is overlooked, little if anything is left to chance. We would have more successful persons if lives were planned as carefully as automobile trips.

A man went to a Halloween fancy dress party. Another said to him: "Pardon me, but you're 'Titus Andronicus,' are you not?" "What, me?" bellowed the man dressed in the Roman toga. "Why, you insulter! snob, I haven't even found out where the bar is yet."

The suggestion of free wheeling occurred first to the hitch-hiker.

She—I want to see the captain of this ship.
Sailor—He's forward miss.
She—I don't care. I'm not afraid of men.

Found 13 Hub Caps, None His.
P. E. Flowers of Albuquerque, N. M., lost a hub cap, and in his efforts to find the way he accumulated 13 others, but none was the one he lost.

Kind Friend—I'll give you a penny for a kiss, Elizabeth.
Bright Child—No, thank you! I can earn more taking cod-liver oil.

Nutting—Why is an hour glass made small in the middle?
Cutting—I don't know, unless it's to show the waste of time?

Post Mortem Knowledge
Stranger, pause as you pass by. As you are now, so once was I. I learned alas, when all too late, That hooch and driving do not mate.

A woman made a purchase from one of the flower girls on the street and said: "I suppose you will be here on Wednesday?" "I shall want a lot of flowers for my daughter," she is coming out on that day."

"She shall have the best in the market, mum," replied the flower seller sympathetically. "What's she been in for?"

When a garage advertises "Starting and lighting a specialty," seems they ought to go into the airplane business if they can start and light successfully.

"I'm afraid, my friend," said the lecturer, interrupting his address to point an accusing finger at a little man who was yawning in front seat, "that you are not following me closely."

"I'm not a friend of yours," replied the man truculently, "and I am not here to listen. I'm waiting to put out the lights in the hall."

Safety first is the only policy to use when on the highways.

Traffic Officer—Pull over there to the curb. Miss—Didn't you see my hand?
Clever Miss—Oh, no, officer. I must have been looking at your pleasant, handsome face!

A conveniently arranged house is one with the shortest possible distance between bedroom, dining room and garage.

Dr. Slicem—Now, don't worry about your wife. You'll have a different woman when she gets back from the hospital.
Chubbywitt—But what if she finds out, Doc?

NO TIME FOR LOVE

Chapter 21

On The Trail

THE Professor followed her. He stood outside her door.

"Couldn't you wait just one more day, Miss Dorcas?" he pleaded. "Why rush off to New York on a moment's notice?"

"I'm not rushing off to New York," Miss Dorcas called out. "But I thought you said your niece had gone home."

"She has. She sent the telegram from New York."

"Then why—"

"But I'm going to Harbor Head," Miss Dorcas said.

"Well, for mercy's sake, why? Since your niece isn't there."

"I'm going to do some research work. For once in my life I'm going to dig into the workings of human beings instead of prehistoric animals." Miss Dorcas came to the door, opened it. "Is the car around front?"

"Yes, Miss Dorcas," said the Professor.

"Good! You can take me to the depot at once," said Miss Dorcas. "I'll have just time to catch the afternoon train for Harbor Head, and that young man who—" She stopped short.

Professor Plunkett shook his head slowly, and went away. A moment later Miss Dorcas could hear him starting the engine of his noisy and antiquated car. She took a last look around the room, put on her hat, picked up her suitcase, and went down to join him.

Miss Dorcas arrived in Harbor Head that day at the same hour Lavinia had arrived the day before, but she did not get out of the bus at the point where Roderick Elliott's cottage was visible. In fact, she didn't know his cottage was visible from that point. One thing she did know, however, and that was that she was going to find Roderick Elliott and say a thing or two to him.

And as the bus carried her on to the Cliffside Inn, she planned what she would say. "Look here, young man, just what did you do to make my niece rush off in the midst of her vacation?"

That, she thought, ought to bring him up standing. He would have to be an expert at evasion if he got around a point-blank, straight-from-the-shoulder question like that.

She fairly barged into the Inn foyer. It was neatly deserted, since it was the dinner hour, and she was glad of this. She went to the desk to register.

"Why, how do you do, Miss Prentiss?" the clerk greeted. "Glad to see you back."

"Thanks," said Miss Dorcas, and wrote her name.

She was just about to ask the clerk if he knew why her niece had departed in such a hurry, when Margot Linden came in from the dining room.

"Hello, Miss Prentiss!" she called. She hurried over, her hand outstretched. "I was hoping you'd visit us again."

Miss Dorcas acknowledged the greeting, and opened her mouth to speak. Margot Linden didn't give her a chance.

Margot's Story
"We were so sorry to lose your niece," she said. "She was such a charming girl."

Miss Dorcas took Margot's arm, drew her over to a secluded place behind a palm.

"Now," she said, "tell me all about it."

"All about what?" said Margot. "Don't try to be polite or evasive, Miss Linden," said Miss Dorcas. "My niece left in a big hurry. Why?"

"None of us know, really," said Margot. "But since you ask, I'll tell you all I know."

"Good! Go Ahead!" Margot explained about the government man and what had happened, just as she had explained to Lavinia the day before.

"But," she went on, "I think the real reason she left in such a hurry was because of Roderick Elliott."

"What about Roderick Elliott?" Miss Dorcas demanded.

"He'd disappeared yesterday while she was in Portland."

"Disappeared?"

"Yes, just like that—here one day, gone the next," Margot lowered her voice. "No one saw the government man with him, but we all feel he's one of the men they took away."

"But why on earth should they do that?"

"Didn't your niece tell you he was suspected of being an escaped German prisoner?"

"Yes, but it sounded like a lot of nonsense to me," Miss Dorcas frowned. "Didn't he leave any message for my niece? I understand they had seen quite a lot of each other."

"No, he left no message for anyone. That's why we're convinced now that he was a man escaped from Canada. Either that, or one of the men who helped the prisoners after they'd gotten over the border."

"Were people around here doing that?"

MODENA

Modena, Jan. 22—Members of the Modena Fire Department have been invited to attend services in the Modena Methodist Church Sunday morning, January 25, in a body.

A countywide vegetable meeting was held Wednesday, January 21, in the Hasbrouck Memorial Hall, by members of the Ulster County Farm Bureau. Dr. R. W. Sweet and M. B. Linn were guest speakers. A dinner was served under the direction of the Hall committee, the sum of $9 was cleared from the meal.

The postponed meeting of the Modena Mother's Club was held Wednesday afternoon in the Modena school, with Mrs. Moody, district school nurse as guest speaker. Mrs. Moody illustrated with health movies, including first aid and T. B. subjects. It voted to contribute the sum of $10 for dental care of pupils in the Modena school. Attending the

"Yes," said Margot. "Using their fishing boats—some of them. And Roderick Elliott had a boat."

"So my niece told me," said Miss Dorcas. "She told me about the trip to the island. She shook her head sadly. 'The poor darling! She'll never forgive me for insisting that she come up here.'"

"Oh, I wouldn't say that," Margot said gently. "After all, she did have a lot of fun. And Mr. Elliott did her a lot of good."

"How?"

"He helped her with her dancing and her bridge," said Margot. "If she hadn't been in such a hurry to leave, I'm sure her last days here would have been decidedly pleasant. Anyway, a lot of young men had taken an interest in her."

"They had?" Miss Dorcas was pleased.

"I should say so! She was on the verge of becoming the belle of the Inn."

Miss Dorcas sighed. "And so my trip here has turned out to be a wild-goose chase," she said. "I came to have a talk with this Mr. Elliott—thinking I might straighten out matters between him and my niece, and now you tell me he's gone also."

"I'm sorry," said Margot. "I wish there was something I could do."

"So do I," said Miss Dorcas. "I reckon I should have minded my own business right from the start, and let my niece go to that quiet spot in Connecticut she was always talking about. At least she'd not have had to run away from anything."

"She'll get over it," said Margot. "I've had a lot of disappointments where men are concerned—and I got over them eventually."

"I know," said Miss Dorcas. "But my niece is a bit odd—I mean, she's been devoting her life to business. I'm afraid this thing will hurt her more than it would the average girl."

She turned to go. "Oh, well, I suppose I'll stay overnight, and then follow her to New York. She probably needs me now, more than she ever did."

Rod

MARGOT started to make a remark, and gasped instead.

"Oh!" she cried. "What's the matter?" Miss Dorcas asked, startled.

"Look!" said Margot, pointing. "Look! There he is now!"

"Who?"

"Roderick Elliott!"

Miss Dorcas looked in the direction Margot indicated, and saw an excited young man talking to the clerk. And while she looked, she saw the clerk glance up, nod toward her, and say something.

The excited young man whirled about.

He came charging across the foyer toward Miss Dorcas—charging in a manner that reminded her of the lion she had shot. She tried to say something, and couldn't. Margot Linden was speechless also, which was something of which to take note.

Are you Lavinia Prentiss's aunt?" Margot asked, in a breathless sort of way.

"Yes," said Miss Dorcas. "I am."

"Then what have you done with her?" Roderick demanded. "I haven't done anything with her," said Miss Dorcas. "And how dare you address me in that tone?"

"I'm sorry," said Rod. "I was all excited, and distressed to hear she'd gone."

"Where on earth have you been?" Margot said, finally locating her voice. "We thought—"

"Never mind what you thought," said Miss Dorcas. She looked Rod straight in the eye. "Young man, I want to have a talk with you."

"I want to have a talk with you, too," said Rod.

"Then what are we waiting for?" said Miss Dorcas.

"This way," said Rod. "We'll go outside—some place."

Margot, a little annoyed at being left out of things, shrugged and said: "Why not take Miss Prentiss out in your boat, Mr. Elliott?"

"I haven't got a boat," said Rod. "Oh!" said Margot. "You mean they took it—and—"

"Come on, young man!" said Miss Dorcas. She caught Rod's arm. "This is one of those times when three isn't only a crowd—it's a riot."

"Would you go down to my cottage with me, Miss Prentiss?" Rod asked. "It's quiet there—and I've so much to say."

"I'd like nothing better," said Miss Dorcas. "I've been curious to see that cottage of yours ever since Lavinia told me about it."

"Oh, then you've seen her?"

"She spent yesterday with me in Portland," said Miss Dorcas. "I advised her to come back here and have a heart to heart talk with you. But this afternoon I got a telegram from her, saying she'd gone home—that she'd come down to earth, and to hook with romance. I had an idea you had something to do with her sudden departure—and so here I am."

meeting were: Miss Margaret Cook, Miss Patricia Fleming, Mrs. Simon DuBois, Mrs. Fred Bernard, Mrs. Lester Wager, Mrs. Louis Hyatt, Mrs. Freston Paltridge, Mrs. Floyd Wells, Mrs. Beulah Thompson, Mrs. Jimmie Stuart, Mrs. Theodore Geirisch. Bar Association Urges Reforms

Walton Is Nominated to Be Re-elected Secretary

New York, Jan. 24 (AP)—The New York State Bar Association, seeking to ease the war-time burden of taxpayers, has adopted a sweeping tax reform program stressing changes in income levels.

The recommendations, voted at the opening of the 65th annual meeting yesterday, include a proposal that state personal income taxes be made payable in quarterly installments and that deductions be allowed for federal income tax payments.

Other officers recommended for re-election by the program committee were Charles W. Walton, Kingston, secretary, and Robert C. Poskanzer, Albany, treasurer.

John G. Jackson of New York, unopposed for re-election to the presidency in today's balloting, termed the congressional plan "a tax on marriage."

Other officers recommended for re-election by the nominating committee were Charles W. Walton, Kingston, secretary, and Robert C. Poskanzer, Albany, treasurer.

The Army and Navy are still exempt except in the case of privately owned cars of officers or employees, in which cases certificates will be required. Sales for export are also exempt to persons holding an export license, providing that these sales authorize the export of a specific number of tires and tubes.

Another amendment which is intended to clarify eligibility status of truck owners included in Dr. Neufeld's announcement, provides that the word "truck" means "any vehicle designed for use on the highways to carry freight, including raw materials, semi-finished products, farm products and foods."

In the original regulations, Dr. Neufeld explained, the words "designed for use on the highways" were not used in defining trucks, and inquires came to OPA and OPM from industrial plants asking whether transactions in new tires and tubes used on special apparatus operated on their properties were restricted by the Tire Rationing Order and Regulations.

The Tire Rationing Order and Regulations, Dr. Neufeld further declared, now restricts transactions in only such new truck tires and tubes as are capable of being used on any truck as defined above. Since most trucks, he added, used wholly within plants are not designed to be used on highways and do not use tires capable of being used on highway trucks, this amendment exempts such in-door trucks from the rationing regulations.

Hearing Stated
Albany, Jan. 24 (Special)—The Public Service Commission will hold a hearing at Albany on Friday, January 30, at 2 p. m., on petition for consent to the transfer by Henry Myers to Adirondack Transit Lines, Inc., of a certificate for the operation of an omnibus route between the city of Kingston and the hamlet of Tillsong, Ulster county.

New Rulings on Regulations for Tires and Tubes

Albany—Restrictions on the sales of new six-and-eight-ply tires of a size less than 700 x 20 have been lifted. This will benefit a considerable number of "eligible" trucks, and in some instances, passenger car owners, according to latest tire rationing regulations and interpretations forwarded today to 235 county administrators and local rationing boards, in Upstate New York, by the Director of the State Bureau of Rationing, Dr. Maurice F. Neufeld.

The new rulings explain that passenger car applicants may receive the right to purchase such tires if they can prove to local boards that their cars cannot be operated with four-ply tires.

Regulations covering tires and tubes which are about 10 years old or more, and referred to as "obsolete," have been modified. Until now, Dr. Neufeld pointed out, they could be obtained by both passenger car and truck owners without proof of eligibility, if certain other conditions were met.

For these "obsolete" tires, truck owners will have to meet eligibility requirements in the future, Dr. Neufeld stated, and only "obsolete" tires sold to truck owners will be deducted from local rationing quotas. In all cases, however, official inspection will have to reveal definite need for the new tire, that it is to be used only to replace a worn-out tire, and that the old casing is turned in when sale is made.

Rationing rules denying future exemptions to holders of high priority ratings, were also forwarded by Dr. Neufeld to the local administrators, following special telegraphic advices received by him today from the Office of Price Administration.

"Exempt groups in the past," Dr. Neufeld stated, "have included those with an A-3 or higher rating issued on a PD-3 certificate, Army and Navy, allied governments and materials being moved under the lease-lend act. Dealers were permitted to deal directly with these groups which were not compelled to go through the local rationing boards."

Under the amended regulations all persons with priority ratings must apply to the local boards and are subject to the same procedure as everybody else. Local dealers are hereby notified that, from this time on, priority ratings may not be accepted in lieu of certificates of purchase.

The Army and Navy are still exempt except in the case of privately owned cars of officers or employees, in which cases certificates will be required. Sales for export are also exempt to persons holding an export license, providing that these sales authorize the export of a specific number of tires and tubes.

Another amendment which is intended to clarify eligibility status of truck owners included in Dr. Neufeld's announcement, provides that the word "truck" means "any vehicle designed for use on the highways to carry freight, including raw materials, semi-finished products, farm products and foods."

In the original regulations, Dr. Neufeld explained, the words "designed for use on the highways" were not used in defining trucks, and inquires came to OPA and OPM from industrial plants asking whether transactions in new tires and tubes used on special apparatus operated on their properties were restricted by the Tire Rationing Order and Regulations.

The Tire Rationing Order and Regulations, Dr. Neufeld further declared, now restricts transactions in only such new truck tires and tubes as are capable of being used on any truck as defined above. Since most trucks, he added, used wholly within plants are not designed to be used on highways and do not use tires capable of being used on highway trucks, this amendment exempts such in-door trucks from the rationing regulations.

Maroon Trims Newburgh, By 34 to 25 in 'Unofficial' Game at City Auditorium

Goldbacks Refuse to Play DUSO Tilt With 'Dutch' Craw as Arbiter; Rod Sagendorf Gets 16

Maybe Bob Ripley has a word for it but as far as Kingston High School officials are concerned, after last night's DUSO League game with Newburgh at the municipal auditorium, it was just one of those things.

When the two clubs trotted out onto the court for a regular league contest, no official referee was on hand. After long negotiations to secure another referee went by the wind, Irwin "Dutch" Craw of this city was drafted to work the game.

Coach Irv Goewey of Newburgh refused to acknowledge Craw as an official referee and the game, which Kingston won by 34 to 25, will not go into the books as such.

The situation came about when it was apparent that Carl V. Warren of Middletown, president of the league, had not appointed any referee for the game after Al Mannheim of Highland Falls was released from any further assignments in the league.

Around Christmas time Mannheim announced that he was through officiating games if the league did not appoint two arbiters for each game. The league then released him from any more work.

When Mannheim failed to arrive for the game, Coach Kias and Goewey telephoned Warren asking for instructions. Warren announced that he was under the impression that Ken Anderson of Foughkeepsie had been appointed but he wasn't sure of that.

Goewey refused to accept Craw as the official referee. Under these circumstances, President Warren suggested that the game go on as an "unofficial." The coaches also tried to contact Larry Cahill of Saugerties but this, too, was to no avail.

With game time long past, Craw was drafted for the "unofficial" game. According to DUSO League rules, in the event that an assigned official does not arrive, the nearest available official shall be secured by mutual agreement of the two coaches.

Rod Sagendorf, who is the present league leader as far as scoring is concerned, paced the locals with 16 points. Ray Herrick, captain of the Maroon and White quintet, followed with eight markers. Kingston pounded into Newburgh fast and took a 16 to 9 lead at half time.

Kingston went into front by 7 to 4 in the opening session. During the second period Kingston, with Sagendorf and company finding the range, tore into Newburgh and just about settled the contest once and for all.

Newburgh, apparently suffering from a case of the jitters following its refusal to play the game as an "official" one, could do much in the way of scoring. Kingston, meanwhile, showed the Goldbacks plenty of sensational basketball.

"Dutch" Craw handled the game in good style, the fans thought. He called eight fouls on Kingston and only three on the Goldbacks from the Hilly City. The box score:

Action in 'Unofficial' Game

Freeman Photo

Here's some quick action going on under the Newburgh net in last night's "unofficial" DUSO League game between the Goldbacks and Kingston at the municipal auditorium. Kingston won the game by 34 to 25, but it won't go into the records that way. Newburgh protested the use of "Dutch" Craw in the game and it had to go under the unofficial banner. Antonucci (11) and Dillon (14) along with a couple of Kingston players are shown leaping for the ball during action in the second period.

'Biff' Jones to Renew Old Friendships at West Point

West Point, N. Y., Jan. 24 (AP).—When Maj. Lawrence (Biff) Jones returns to the U. S. Military Academy next month to take over his new assignment as graduate manager of athletics, he'll find some of his former assistants running the football squad.

Nine members of the West Point athletic staff—including Football Coach Earl Blaik and two of his helpers—have been associated with Jones in other years as coaches, players or both.

Major Jones, who retired from the army in 1937 to accept the University of Nebraska's offer to head its gridiron staff, was recalled yesterday and ordered to report February 2, to succeed Col. Louis E. Hibbs, soon to be transferred to another post.

"It's going to be just like old times," said Blaik, who returned to the academy from Dartmouth only a year ago to become head coach. "We're happy to have him coming back."

Blaik was an assistant under the "biffer" during the last three of his four years as army head coach from 1926 through 1929, and helped Jones briefly at Louisiana State University after the latter moved there.

Harry (Fats) Ellinger, the present line coach, played under Jones here and has been a member of Blaik's staff for several years, both at Dartmouth and Army.

End Coach Frank (Spec) Moore, who joined Blaik at Dartmouth and came here with him, played for Biff at L. S. U. and coached under him both there and at Oklahoma.

Six coaches of other sports, who were here during the first Jones regime, still are on the job. They are Leo Novak, track; Morris Touchstone, lacrosse; Ray Marchand, hockey; Joe Hill, swimming; Tom Jenkins, wrestling; and Billy Cavanaugh, boxing.

For the time being, at least, the new assignment ends Jones' football coaching career which has been interrupted only once since it began in 1920 after his graduation from West Point. His lifetime record is 87 victories, 33 defeats and 14 ties.

In his new position, Jones will take no part in the coaching of the team. His work will be that formerly handled by two men. Lieut. Col. William J. Reardon, an assistant to Colonel Hibbs, already has been transferred to duty at Fort Knox, Ky.

be out to end Kingston's recent victory surge.

Sunday night the Rees move over to Saratoga to meet the Spaulding Indians in a State League struggle. Here the teams will enter the game on even terms.

The Rees are looking for second place which the Indians now hold.

Kingston will not return to the municipal auditorium on Broadway until Wednesday night, February 4 when it tangles with the Troy Pros. This game will be played as a benefit to the "March of Dimes." A great turnout is expected to jam the auditorium that night to welcome the locals home.

43 to 32 Victory Over Hospital Five

The High Falls Firemen chalked up another victory last night by trouncing the Hudson River State Hospital team by the score of 43 to 32. Schoonmaker and Wood led the winners with 14 and 12 points respectively.

The hose-handlers, after trailing 17 to 16 in the first half, came back strong in the final two periods to overwhelm the visitors. Don Schoonmaker and "Woody" Wood made the big offensive drive against the State Hospital club.

Knapp of the visiting team took high scoring honors of the night with 15 markers.

The High Falls Juniors continued on the winning side of the ledger by defeating St. Peters 37 to 18 as the Sutton brothers put on a show collecting 23 points between them. Bob collected 13 and Clay 10. The Juniors have a record of six wins and one loss in the season to date.

Radio Chart Listening Post

By Tom MacPherson
Add to the casualties of war, the semi-professional quiz contestant.
As censorship further restricts the audience-participation shows, the free-booter with the file cabinet memory must now seek other means of livi-hood.

Didn't know there were such animals? Well, take it from Ralph "Truth or Consequences" Edwards, the organization of such a group was inevitable, what with thousands of dollars being offered weekly by the interrogative fraternity.

Descending upon a quiz
program, says Edwards,
"They arrive early, grab
conspicuous aisle seats, and when the request for volunteers is made, they are the first to raise their hands. They invariably give false names and home cities, usually away from New York—
since they know the program prefers to have country-wide representation. They frequently concoct unusual occupations, like pretzel vender and dog dentist, to give the emcee a chance to get humor and color into his chatter.

"Once I almost selected a likely prospect, but when he told me he was a sheep herder from Arizona, he struck a familiar note and I suddenly recalled that a month earlier he had palmed himself off on me as a launderer of dog blankets."

A score or so of these people, Edwards admits, gain admission to his and other question-and-answer programs, it being impossible to keep tickets out of their hands. Tickets can be had by anyone writing for them, with no record kept of requests, hence another alias each week is another brace of ducats.

Another small group of steady visitors to quiz programs are harmless non-pro enthusiasts, who,

The master proponent of personal deduction gets a few lessons in scientific criminal deduction. Basil "Sherlock Holmes" Rathbone visits a modern crime laboratory in Los Angeles.

says Edwards, wish merely to maintain their amateur standing.

You agreed completely with the following words when you heard them being broadcast:
"It's not a sacrifice to go without many things to which we are accustomed if the National Defense calls for doing without them. It's a privilege."

Well, don't you think it is also a privilege to "go without" voluntarily so you can buy Defense Bonds? Examine your budget and check every expenditure. See how much you can put by for Defense Bonds and Stamps. Set yourself a quota
... then beat it. Join your country in all-out defense against the Axis by purchasing at least one Defense Bond every pay day.

It's a pleasure. . . .

Elastic Stockings

HERE at last are elastic stockings you won't mind wearing. They are so sheer they look like fine silk hose, and can be worn unnoticed.
And the lighter Lestex yarns give you cool comfort, yet you get full support, too. And they can be washed frequently without losing their shape. Ask your doctor about Bauer's
Black Elastic
Stockings.

Peter's Pence Offering
Stating that "in our charity, we shall help the Holy Father in his charity." The Most Rev. Francis J. Spellman, Archbishop of New York, has addressed a letter to all pastors of the archdiocese to be read at all Masses on Sunday, January 25, inviting the parishioners "to participate in the world-wide charity of the Holy Father by contributing as generously as possible to the annual Peter's Pence offering." The offering will be taken up at all the Masses in every church of the Archdiocese of New York on Sunday, February 1.

Mikado Loses Standing
London, Jan. 24 (AP)—The Mikado was stricken today from the roll of Knights of the Order of the Garter. His banner was removed from above his stall in the choir of St. George's chapel at Windsor and taken into the vaults to lie with other disgraced banners, including those of King Vittorio Emanuele of Italy and the late Kaiser Wilhelm.

Births Recorded
The following births have been reported to the Board of Health:
Mr. and Mrs. William B. Kellogg of Saugerties, a daughter, Gail Maxine, in Benedictine Hospital. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. McCann of Rosendale, a daughter, Dolores Martha, in Benedictine Hospital.

Robert F. Schoonmaker Will Train as Flier
Robert F. Schoonmaker of 121 Cedar street was one of the 15 young men from this area, accepted for training as pilots in the Army Air Corps, after a series of final physical and mental aptitude tests in New York on Monday.

The 15 successful candidates were drawn from a corps of 40 men enrolled under the sponsorship of the Poughkeepsie Lodge of Elks.

Miss Bradburn to Head Physical Education Plan
Miss Helen N. Bradburn of Albany avenue, one of the supervisors of physical education in the public schools, was chosen as representative from this section to attend a statewide conference on physical fitness for girls and women held January 19 to 23, at Russell Sage College, Troy.

The conference was called by the committee on activities for girls and women of the New York State Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation.

The conference delegates were given the opportunity to work out techniques for physical fitness in the college gymnasium. The program was approached from three angles, elementary and high school level and adult program.

The delegates also studied several subjects relating to the work of physical fitness such as: Gymnastics for body conditioning, special technique for meeting sustained defense demands, rhythms and dances, and sports and games.

All physical education teachers have been asked to volunteer a minimum of four hours a week for physical education in their own communities. They also have been asked to pool ideas for programs.

Miss Bradburn has been appointed temporary chairman to contact all of the physical education women workers in this county to arrange for projects to be handled by experts in this section. All of the physical education teachers are urged to register at their local volunteer defense office for this work and to be prepared to instruct classes.

Boy Sustains Cut
Kenneth Zeidler, 10, of 84 West Pierpont street, slipped while running with a soda water bottle on Thursday and fell. The bottle broke inflicting a cut in the right hand that was so severe he was rushed to the office of Dr. Robert F. Moseley for first aid treatment, and later taken to the Benedictine Hospital where it was found necessary to take three stitches to close the wound.

Fewer Radios Ahead
Washington, Jan. 24 (AP)—The War Production Board directed radio and phonograph makers today to cut their output for civilian use by nearly one-half during the next three months, and indicated that the major companies soon would be on a 100 per cent war production footing.

Ministers Decide To Hold Evening Prayer at 6 P. M.

The following is the substance of a resolution adopted by the Kingston Ministerial Association in the January meeting of the association at the Y. M. C. A. Friday, January 23:

The Department of Evangelism of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America has strongly suggested that all Christian people shall join in a minute of silent prayer at 6 p. m. daily, and that such concerted intercession shall be especially for the problems arising from the war crisis.

The need for increased devotions has also been expressed by the Central Conference of American Rabbis.

It was therefore resolved that the Kingston Ministerial Association express its hearty approval of the plan, and urge all Christian and Jewish people of the community "to join with our brethren all over the nation in this daily observance."

It was also resolved, that the association recommend that wherever it is possible the church bells be rung daily at 6 p. m. as a reminder of this; and further resolved, that the association recommend to church people of the community the continued use throughout each day, as often as possible, of simple ejaculatory prayers such as "The Kingdom Come; Thy Will Be Done," believing that such concerted aspiration that the will of God may be accomplished and placing ourselves in the stream of that will, should exert tremendous spiritual power for good upon the evil forces of the day.

Be it also observed, that a copy of this resolution be sent to the local papers, and that all ministers of the community be urged to work for community-wide observance.

(Signed) MAURICE W. VENNO, President.
D. LINTON DOHERTY, Vice-President.
RUSSELL DAMSTRA, Recording Secretary-Treasurer.
H. VICTOR KANE, Corresponding Secretary.

Dr. Kingdon Is To Give Address

Noted Pastor and Lecturer Will Speak Monday at M.J.M. School

DR. FRANK KINGDON
The Kingston Lodge of the B'nai B'rith will open its 1942 forum series with an address to be delivered by Dr. Frank Kingdon in the Myron J. Michael School auditorium on Monday evening at 8:15 o'clock.

In times of uncertainty, when problems are posed to free peoples that they alone must solve, they turn to outstanding thinkers for guidance and for rational analyses.

In that small group on which the country relies to clarify momentous issues, Dr. Frank Kingdon holds a unique position. On the radio, in social work and in the press, he fights for a better future that all men hope will evolve from this chaos.

In 1929, Dr. Kingdon became the pastor of the Calvary Church in East Orange, New Jersey, and for 12 years has been a prominent figure in the cultural life of that state. On his arrival in the east, he became active in the National Conference of Jews and Christians and has served for 10 years on its executive committee. In 1930, he received the honorary degree of L.L.D. from Ohio Northern University.

Dr. Kingdon resigned from the pastorate in East Orange in 1934 to accept the presidency of Dana College in Newark. When Dana College was merged with other Newark institutions to form the University of Newark, he became the first president. During this period he was campaign chairman of the Newark Community Chest and president of the Newark Welfare Federation for three years.

In December of 1939, he was awarded the Pi Lambda Phi gold medal given annually to the American judged to be the outstanding interpreter of humanitarianism and brotherhood. Here was acknowledgement of the work that Dr. Langdon, through a full life in the service of mankind, has done.

Dr. Kingdon has written several books among which are "When Half-Gods Go," "The Religious Implications of Modern Science."

At the present time, he is also special lecturer at the Institute of Public Affairs of the University of Virginia, special lecturer at Town Hall, New York, and special lecturer at the Williamstown Institute of Human Relations.

This lecture will be followed by one on February 9 which will be addressed by Maurice Samuels. The third lecture will take place on March 23, and will be addressed by Dr. Tehyi Hsieh. This will be followed by a panel discussion to take place on Monday, April 13. Proceeds will benefit the Red Cross.
